The Commercial Counsellors also prepare periodical market surveys, organise buyer-seller meets and schedule investment promotion activities in terms of seminars, workshops and discussions. These efforts have acquired greater depth with the initiation of the on-going reform process of our economy.

While no specific targets are laid the Annual action plan, lays down a framework of activities for the missions, under which they undertake a series of measures to promote India's economic and commercial interests. These measures include organisations of and participation in Trade Pairs, preparation for Joint Commission/ Joint Committee meetings and cultivation of key local businessman and decision makers in the local government. The performance and utility of the commrcial counsellors as well as their contribution is assessed by the concerned Head of Mission.

In the context of the recent measures towards liberalisation of our economy, steps have been taken to strengthen and re-orient the functioning of our commercial representatives abroad. In this periodic briefings of Indian Heads of Missions, the Prime Minister has repeatedly stressed the importance of enhancing the economic content of Indian diplomacy. Accordingly, communications have been addressed to all Heads of Missions outlining the steps required for enhancing their participation in export promotion. These steps include monitoring all economic developments relevant to India extension of assistance to exporters and business delegations, promotion of India's participation in projects offered for international bidding. They have also been asked to prepare comprehensive economic and commercial notes for use by Indian exporters and prepare target oriented action plans to promote our exports, particularly in thrust areas and to undertake market surveys. A mechanism has also been devised for close and continuous interaction between our Missions and our trade/industry organisations to avoid delays in communication. To enable our Missions to effectively discharge these responsibilities, special training programmes have been organised in India for commercial representatives as well as Heads of Missions. For more efficient functioning of our Missions, steps have been taken to computerise information in the commercial/economic wings of some of our Missions.
